From this day forth all who pass this way will know that the men of Kerry who fought and died for Ireland are not forgotten and their memory will endure as long as this bronze memorial stands at Ballyseedy.

Unselfish upholders and fearless defenders of the Irish Republic. These eight men of Kerry whose names we trace with pride and remember with homage suffered martyrdom on this spot on the night of March 6th-7th

This memorial also commemorates their comrades
Dennis Broderick
John Galvin
Michael Ryle
Seamus Taylor
who died for Ireland in this locality.

This memorial also commemorates the other men of the Kerry No 1 Brigade of the Irish Republican Army who died in Kerry and elsewhere whose names are inscribed on those plinths.

N.B. Some of the men named on this memorial died in the Easter Rising, some in the War of Independence and some in the Civil War, but there is no information on the memorial as to which conflict was involved for each man.

As it is not possible to show someone as having died in two wars, all have been classified as being War of Independence casualties on the 'Persons' database. If information on this point is provided, the database will be altered.
